Mr. Madden said he was trying to suggest a short way out of the difficulty.

Strength, appearance, success depend on health. Living habits today are largely artificial-indoorsedentary. To be healthy, we must regard Nature's laws. MR. LANSING'S SUCCESSOR.

If the president loves surprises his dearest wish was gratified at the national astonishment when he named Bainbridge Colby on Wednesday to succeed former Secretary of State Lansing. It is to be presumed that the president has satisfied himself that the mind of the new secretary runs in accord with that of the president. That was one of the specifications required by Mr. Wilson as set forth in his letter to Mr. Lansing.

Mr. Colby has tried the republican party and was one of the foremost bull-moosers. When Hughes was nominated he refused to follow Col. Roosevelt back to much as a democrat, but as a Wilson adherent.

This will not be the first time Mr. Colby's name has been before the senate. When he was appointed on the shipping board he was given a careful analysis by some of the republicans who had not forgotten his bull moose activities, and by the democrats who were of the opinion that Mr. Colby was not a very good democrat.

It is apparent that Mr. Wilson was not so impressed with the assistant secretary of state, Mr. Polk, as were most of the prophets in Washington. It really matters little who the secretary of state is. Mr. Wilson is his left in peace along with the Saltan. own secretary. Mr. Colby is probably as well qualified to look after the routine of the department as any one while the big things which have to do with the action of America and her position in diplomatic affairs will noted that James Gerard is a democratic candidate for receive the attention of Mr. Wilson himself. No chief president. can do it for him.

THE CENSUS BETTERNS.

With the population of American cities, as determined by the decennial count, now being issued by the census bureau, many places between which a spirit of rivalry exists will be in a fever of impatience until the returns in which they are most interested are disclosed. In the east, where the population is dease and cities are is hardly more than one of mild curlosity. Of course, in nearby places of nearly the same size there is a desire to show more inhabitants than the competitor and thus secure the right to boast of being a bigger city.

But it is in the west and south that the emotion proused over the matter reaches its highest intensity. There a number of cities have sprung up like much rooms in late years and the pride of the inhabitants in the size of their towns has swollen in proportion. And where two towns in the same tetritory have been grow-Ing almost equally fast the eagerness with which the census figures are awaited can only be compared to that size for Bill Hohenzollera's place of internment. with which race-track results are awaited by bettors or èlection returns by politicians.

The civic pride thus aroused is a capital thing for the city whose citizens possess it. Applied to proper uses, it can be made to produce beneficial results. Except in the case of the large cities, however, in which their relative standing as to population may have some effect on their business. It is rather foolish to become so excited over population. The competition between small cities to show the largest population in the census returns might be more profitable if it were directed to showing the lowest proportion of prisoners in the jails. the highest proportion of church members, or something similarly commendable.

THE MYSTERY OF CAULAUX.

It may be that ex-Premier Caillaux of France-has been guilty of the detestible charges of conspiracy against his country during the war for which he is now facing trial before the French senate sitting as a high court. In fact, if he has been guilty of one-tenth the things attributed against him it is difficult to understand why he has not long before this been stood against a wall like Bolo Pasha and shot at sunrise. On the contrary, reports from abroad are that his conviction is very doubtful. Flow is it possible to reconcile these contradictions with the demonstrated patriotic fervor of the French people?

It is all very well to explain that during his 20 years in politics, mostly in high governmental positions, he built up a political machine which in self-protection must stick by him. That may be the explanation, but it is a very serious reflection on the patriotism of many of the foremost statesmen of France. The only other the Wisconsin State Press Association, praising the replausible theory is that, now the war frenzy is past and ception given them in this city. war propaganda is no longer necessary, the facts may

The newspaper has a duty to its subscribers. It agrees to give them ail the news. When it suppresses news to satisfy the whim of a friend, either for business or personal reasons, that paper is embezzling from its readers; it has taken their money under false protenses. When it allows itself to color its news, it is even more guilty.

The subscriber must come first. The duty to the reader is the first duty of the puper, for, without the confidence of the reader, the worth of a newspaper is destroyed. It becomes an organ instead of a newspaper.

Still, we reflected, there were advantages to this kind of interview Oulja, once cornered, could not plead a previous engagement or a conference, and judging by his reputation he would have a lot to say.

So we decided to borrow a staid, serious minded 'old oulja and ask him about the Sims-Daniels scrap, and who ought to be the next president, and if there were any messages from cousin Lon, who is either dead or in Chicago. We knew the board to borrow. It belongs to an elderly woman who goes in for higher thought and concentration, and undoubtedly her oulja has never been asked a slily question in its life.

The old woman promptly offered to get the board, and also a book on how to get the best results with quilia. We hanled oulja home, corracled a triend to act as accomplice, and with the setting arranged, setsome prosaic toymaker, French perhaps, or German, accidentlyy put these two syllables together and found the effect pleasing, so that he named the board which answered yes and no, ouija, a union of languages not offensive.

Comedy and Faree

Most of ouija's history has been comedy, so far, and a good deal has been farce, but in a few cases an unaccountable force, is said to have guided the board. HOOSIER FIVE, 31-20

Lafayette, Ind., Fob. 26.—Purdue won from Indiana here last night, 31 to 20. The score was tied at the end of the first frame, but in the final the flurdue forwards continued to pile it up. Indiana played five men on the frurdue ferwards, and it was by unprecedented strategy the Boilermakers were able to score. Furdue's back mard was a feature of the game, and his ability prevented the Indiana forwards from getting to the Purdue rates. Dean, Indiana center, was easily the stellar performer for the Crimson, while Byrum played a strong grame at hack guard. The summary france (31)

EDISONS READY FOR JAUNT THROUGH EAST

The team is booked for Buttalo on the 6th, where they meet the Orioles, the pride of New York state. On the 9th they play Utica, N. Y., and the 10th Jamestown, arriving in Orango, N. you will see how he might have been incligible for cabinet membership if Mr. Wilson hadn't been disposed to let bygones be bygones. ident to be American minister to Greece.

A Wilson Worshipper.

The selection of Bainbridge Colby to be secretary of state, however, means no sudden affinity between the white house and the distinguished progressive. It is a fact that bir. Colby became enamored of President Wilson whon he came to Washington to become a member of the shipping board. No more cloquent compliments have been paid to the president in public speech than those by Mr. Colby. He regards the president in public speech than those by Mr. Colby. He regards the president as the true progressive, the logical heir to Bull Moosism of 1912. Mr. Colby is what might be called a liberal in domestic affairs and by the same line of reasoning may be expected to follow out the idealism of the president in foreign policies. He is probably more interested in people than property although no one has a keener respect for the laws governing both than Bainbridge Colby. He has been a near member of the cabinet for some time. He was urged for attorney general when Mr. McReynolds was elevated to the supreme bench and was considered for a cabinet post after the 1016 campaign was over.

Mr. Colby will find little difficulty in following out the Wilson policies in International affairs. He is weeded to no particular theories of international law or international relationship beyond the broad principles enunciated by the president himself, It is for instance unlikely that Mr. Colby would be embarrased in handling the Russian question. Mr. Lansing, his predecessor, was an inveterate fee of the Russian soviets, something that could not always have been pleasing to President Wilson, who has throughout the last year experienced some qualms of restrict that the allies didn't cater into some kind of intercourse with the defacto authorities in Russia and get things started as the supreme council now seems likely to do.

AMUSEMENTS

(Notices furnished by the Theatres.)

There are a few theatrical attractions that do not lend themselves to duplication. Of these the three best known nationally are Ziegfeld's "Follies," the New York Winter Garden's "Passing Show," and the Marcus Show. Possibly this is why these attractions have become standard in the last decade. One seidom sees either of the trio in other than the big eastern cities but when one does one knows that here is the Number One, Original, Only, Dyed in the wool, blown in bottle, hope to die iroupe bearing the name. The contemplated engagement of the Marcus Show in the most recent of its annual revue "Oh Baby" is therefore of especial interest.

As he came within hearing distance, he heard the farmer say: There he comes now, the one I was to the other side of the stream where is a gond in the case," and I will give them a good chase if they try to each me. And should they catch me. I pity the men and unimals at the circus when I get there, for I shall use my sharp horns to advantage and split a hole in their old tent and come back to Nanny. Now

The farmer is holding out his hand as if he had something in it, for me to eat. Oh, no, Mr. Furmer, I am too old a goat to be caught with chaff. However, I will stand still on this side of the stream and see what they will do:

And there Billy stood with his head raised waiting for them and he made as fine a picture of a goat as you ever saw, standing on a little green knoll with the silvery stream running at his feet.

The circus man was delighted with him for he was almost twice the size of any other goat he had ever seen, and he thought how fine he would look dressed up as a professor with his long, sliky beard.

By this time the men were directly opposite Billy and he noticed that the circus man kept his hands benind him all the time, but presently he drew them forward and in one he heid a rope with a long loop in it. "So, ho," thought Billy, "he expects to tie that rope around my neck, does he? Well, let him cross the stream and catch me first." But while Billy was thinking this the circus man was making the rope. But while Billy was thinking this the circus man was making the rope fly round and round his head in a long circle, and soon with a quick twist, the rope straightened out and settled on his neck while he stood looking at them.

Foreword

The 1918 epidemic of influenza showed that the disease was one of extreme communicability, it is limited to human beings; it is can to micro-organisms yet to be identified. Mental condition will not cause the disease—so don't worry.

Evidence of the Disease
The causative agent of the disease is given off from the nose and mouth of infected persons, and gains entrance through the nose and mouth of persons who contract the disease—there is no other way in which the disease is transmitted.

Prevention

It is important to have a handker-chief always ready when you cough or sneeze, keeps the lingers away from the nose and mouth, the germs are transferred this way. Wash your hands well before cating sleep in well ventilated rooms, avoid crowds, and do not neglect the slightest cold—here the greatest danger lies—that "simple" cold.

Physical and nervous exhaustion should be avoided, at the least sign of any achy or tired feeling proper rest must be had. It is of vast importance to clean out the entire intestinal tract, the allmentary canal, upper and lower bowels. Chicago Review.

Chicago Feb. 26.—Although lightness of receipts brought about some display of strength in the corn market today, prices soon underwent a sag. The bears put emphasis chiefly on difficulties of the financial situation. Besides, trade was light, and bouses were inclined to marketing.

market hardened a little and then decilined.

Provisions were dull and weak, influenced by reports of decreases in employment at the packing houses.

Subsequently, reports of serious damage to the wheat crop in Kansas led to a sharp advance in the corn market, and so too did wheat export purchases at the Gulf of Mexico by the British commission. The close was firm, %c to 2c net higher, with May $1.37% to $1.37% and July $1.31% (21.31%).

FAST GAVE BEFORE PRINGING UP FATHER ANY BODY WITH MONROE HIGH

Containing almost as much interest as the regularly scheduled game between the Janesville high school and Moeroe high to be held at the local gym tomorrow night, is a preliminary contest to be played between the high seconds and the team of the First Baptist church. The staging of two games is an innovation in this season's basketbail here. The team to represent the Baptists will be composed of some of the starplayers of previous high school fives, it will be the team that will enter the church league which starts Saturday night, and be practically the same bunch of fellows who fought with St. Patrick's last year for first place in that league and finished second.

Sprackling at Center.

Sprackling, who was all Whitewater tournament forward last year and made the all-church team, will appear for the Baptists at center. He is at present attending the Univercity of Wisconsin where he has been playing fast ball with a fraternity five that is cleaning up everything in the Capitol city.

playing that ball with a trace hity that is cleaning up everything in the Capitol city.

Harmon, forward, and Hunter and Parkins, guards, will also be on the church aggregation. They have been playing with the Samson basketball team. Kornish, captain for two years of Fort Atkinson's basketball team where he played for four years, will be found at forward. Utility men will probably be found in Badger and Jeff Davis.

The high school, second team will be composed of Rasmussen, center. Bick and Barriage, forwards, and Lane and Newman, guards.

Spirit of the school body for tomorrow's contest is high. The prevailing sentiment is to "hang the crepe on Monroe."

KARTJE WINS FROM ZBYSZKO AT DELAVAN

(By Special Correspondent.)
Delavan. Feb. 24.—Ernst Katje.
Chicago light heavyweight, defeated Young Zbyszko two falls out of three here last night. The bout was successful from every standpoint, showing that the local tans are backing the American Legion in bringing clean sports to the town.
The first fall went to Karije in 37 minutes of hard tustling in which the abilities of both contestants were rested to the straining point. Finally the Windy city boy downed the Fole with a head seissors and bar arm.
The second went to Zbyszko in 31
minutes on a combination head seissors and toe hold. Kartje got the third in 13 minutes with a body
seissors and head chancery.
The middle event of the card was taken by Al Jones of Delavan who threw Norris Mecklenburg in two stratight falls, the first in 35 minutes,
the second in 12.

In the cartair raiser, between Young Morrisey and Kid Vorpah, local flyweights, Vorpahi was the winner.
